

Come home to comfort

By Latashni Gobi Nathan

When you come home, you want a bed or a sofa that can help create an ambience you can relax in.

When looking for a sofa to fit your living room, consider the size, material, the colour and the support it offers. The sofa you pick can change how your living room looks and instantly make it a cosy haven.

Mr Paul Keng, managing director of The Furniture Mall, said: "Buy a sofa that fits your lifestyle, where you can do work or take short naps on. L-shaped sofas and reclining sofas are great for lounging, while straight-back sofas are ideal for doing work."

Choosing a mattress for your bedroom can be a daunting task if you are unsure what you need.

Different manufacturers produce mattresses using different technologies and materials.

Mr Keng said: "The most important aspect to take note of when buying a mattress is how well it supports your back and how comfortable it is for you. Older people might be more drawn to firmer mattresses as they provide better support, while others may prefer memory foam mattresses that are softer."

Ultimate comfort right at home

FOR THE BEDROOM

Tempur Breeze Collection

Tempur Breeze mattresses optimise the micro-climate around your body to help you feel cooler when you sleep. The material used in the Tempur Climate mattress allows for faster and more efficient moisture movement and breathability. The special performance fabric allows humidity to pass through easily.

Vitalwood Mattress

The Anatomical Wooden Spring (AWS) Technology, the unique and patented system in the Special Edition Vitalwood Mattress is embedded with organic handmade wooden springs that provide spinal support. Flexible and firm, the Double Air Channel in the mattress offers five firmness zones. The mattress has a hybrid latex, antibacterial foam, and is handmade with natural latex, coconut, horse-hair, wool and cotton.

FOR THE LIVING ROOM

Hugo sofa

The stylishly designed yellow Hugo sofa will add a bold style to any living room. Made from full Italian cow leather, the sofa comes with adjustable head-rests and elegant and sleek armrests. The Hugo sofa can be modified to meet different size requirements for any space.
